They're back in the saddle again

By PETER ALLEN

ALBANY — The sweetest moment in a horse race occurs when the muscular thoroughbreds head down the stretch, the jockeys so earnest they look like they'll spring out of the saddle.

The race track announcer's deep voice gains intensity, becomes indecipherable. The crowd pushes to the rail, voices converge into one mumble-rumble roar. The announcer and the crowd become a duet, reach a crescendo and collapse together at the finish line.

It's a moment of high drama and at Golden Gate Fields it began Tuesday, the first of the season's 100 racing days.

Winners scattered throughout the crowd announce their good luck.

"All right! All right!" says one gray-haired man punching the air.

"I just got me one and it feels good," says a younger, paunchy man, walking in circles. "I feel good. He took him on the outside. Oh, boy."

After the emotional peaks, there's dead time until the next race. Bettors, some of them grim-faced, study racing forms with their brows furrowed and arms folded.

Discarded tickets litter the ground. An older woman, her hair dyed a pallid strawberry and her mouth a smudge of red lipstick and cigarette smoke, bends over and picks up a dime.

Everybody says they come to the races to have a good time, but you won't catch many folks in an out-right laugh. This is serious fun. It's the kind enjoyed by all economic classes, whether you parked your car a quarter-mile away and hooted it to the stadium or you shelled out $5 for valet parking and another $12 to watch the race from a linen-covered table at the Turf Club.

And they're off...the start of the first race

Opening day draws 10,567

Defiantly handled by veteran jockey Frank Olivares, Southern California invader Known For Style took command in mid-stretch and drew away for a convincing three-length victory in the $39,000 Golden Bear Stakes Tuesday as Golden Gate Fields in Albany opened its 38th thoroughbred racing season.

The opening-day crowd of 10,567 surpassed the first-day throng of 9,123 for last year's strike-hampered debut.

Run Roni Run, who carved out the early puce, was second, and 2-1 favorite Montauk was third in the cast of 10 three-year-olds.

Known For Style, who lost the vision in his left eye in a freak accident four months ago, covered six furlongs in a day-best of 1:10. Breaking alertly on the far outside, Known For Style stalked Run Roni to the eighth pole before accelerating under Olivares' strong urging.

Known For Style returned $8.60, $4.60 and $3.40. It was the second win in four starts for the Kentucky-bred winner. The first place check of $23,250 more than doubled his previous earnings.

The Golden Bear serves as the opening jewel of GGF's Triple Crown for sophomores, followed by the Gold Rush Stakes and the $200,000 California Derby. The Albany plant introduced the Pick-six carryover, and no one came up with perfect tickets of six winners Tuesday. There were 26 tickets with five winners, worth $921.20 apiece.

Jockey Russell Baze opened his bid for an unprecedented fourth straight East Bay riding title with a pair of winners — Majesty Lady ($3.60) and Carl's Story ($4.40).

"Sometimes you win and sometimes you lose," is an oft-repeated phrase at the race track, as gamblers explain why losing doesn't tear them apart.

Eugene Thomas, 64, dressed in a blue suede cowboy hat, dark green suit, black shirt and white tie, shrugs when he talks about losing $700 in a single day.

"I don't think nothing of it," says Thomas, a retired groomer and trainer who claims he has won up to $8,000 in a day. "I don't pay it no mind...I'm going to win sooner or later."

Thomas says he bets whenever he gets the money but that he isn't addicted to it. He just loves the track.

"It's good fresh air," he says. "And there's always something to do. You can always make a nickel."

He points out, however, that there are other regulars who are afflicted with a gambling addiction.

"I've seen people lose their wife, home and car. It's just like a wino. Every nickel he gets he buys wine with it. It's the same at the race track. Now I can smoke and I can throw the pack away. I've done it before. (Gambling) ain't no habit you can't quit. Oh, yeah, I'll quit if I've got something else to do."

Veteran bettors say they study a number of factors before settling on a choice: the records of horses or their jockeys, breeding, training. Sometimes they go on hunches.

No one, surprisingly, mentions that a name can draw them to the ticket window. Maybe the names are just too good: Suggillation, Bolo Battle, Brief Impasse, Nat's Dancer, Now See This, Sassy Tess, Distant Note, I'll Have The Tab, Callipygian, Elated Duke, It's Never Dull, Easy Hustler, Noodle Roni, Hail the Judge, Forgotten Alibi.

No wonder it's tough to understand the announcer.

In the first race Triple Breaker beat the field of maiden three year olds

Dear Debbie and Jack,
We started the year with a real bang by moving into a new home at Southampton in Benicia.
It's a lovely 4 bedroom 3 bath house with a spacious master bedroom suite featuring a retreat and the largest walk-in closet we've ever seen (the closet alone seems bigger than our first home). You'll have to visit us when we settle in (we now have plenty of room). There is so much to tell you and do around Benicia... and lots of fine restaurants, Jack.
The best part of all, it's such a friendly neighborhood. And the Southampton Company has been so helpful. When we had some questions or a problem, they're always on the spot. Now we see why over 8,000 people live in Southampton. (over)
